The Letter

[illegible] Feb 12—The Committee will publish the following letter from Mr. B. F. Jones, chairman of the national republican committee, in reply to a letter from Mr. [illegible] asking if he were to be a candidate for the presidency. Mr. Jones was asked whether this declination would prevent [illegible] from making any [illegible] as a candidate of the republican committee. I do not think it proper for me to say anything on the subject.

The letter to Mr. Blaine [illegible]

Tribune Rally, Jan 25, 1888

Mr. Chairman of the Republican [illegible]

I wish through you to state to members of the Republican [illegible] I have will not be required to [illegible] and convention called to assemble in June next for the nomination of candidates for president and vice president of the United States. I am pleased to this decision by considerations entirely personal to myself. [illegible] were advised more than a month ago that I cannot in the [illegible] which happens before the [illegible] with gratitude for the [illegible] to the Capital and [illegible] with sincere gratitude for your [illegible] citizen comfort and culture [illegible] home.

To [illegible] of [illegible] more directly [illegible] a public calling. I [illegible] self with the confident [illegible] administration of the [illegible] be restored to the [illegible] demonstrated [illegible] to wield it for the [illegible] of the republic for the [illegible] progress of the people. [illegible] sincerely yours, James G. Blaine.

CLEVELAND TALKS.

Cleveland, February 13—Gen. Sherman, who is in the city, on the [illegible] Blaine would not allow [illegible] used in [illegible] the convention [illegible] been exciting [illegible] from Blaine for some time. Brown, one of the foremost Americans, who every republican now [illegible] of right to honor, and it was [illegible] that he has not [illegible] to the race again. He thought the [illegible] run a number of candidates [illegible] the front. He himself [illegible] a race for the Ohio delegation and would contest honors [illegible] tion. He [illegible] Blaine would not accept [illegible] tion, and if he were [illegible] he [illegible] Sherman had entered the [illegible]

CHAIRMAN JONES TALKS.

Private [illegible] February 13—Hon. B. F. Jones, chairman of the republican committee, was interviewed by a Chronicle-Telegraph reporter this afternoon on Blaine's letter of declination. Mr. Jones stated that Blaine was in very poor health, and it was not for this reason that he declined renomination. "His trip," said he, "has been wonderfully beneficial. I have [illegible] many times him, and in nearly all of them he has spoken of his health and said he was entirely recovered. No, sir, it is not ill health nor fear of the result or the worry and strain of another campaign which impelled Mr. Blaine to write that letter."

"Will you tell me what Mr. Blaine's reasons are?"

"As given to me it [illegible] to which Blaine refers, the reasons were first: Before nomination by the republicans in 1876 Blaine was very anxious to obtain the presidency and worked hard with aid of his friends. He was disappointed when it went to another man in [illegible] nor it did. In 1880 he was still anxious, though in a [illegible] degree, and his disappointment was less marked. In 1884 he had to a great extent lost [illegible] for the office and now he would take [illegible] the contest because he has no wish for the presidency. He takes a keen interest in literary work and wants to be at quiet. I assure you these are the only reasons for Blaine's letter that could [illegible] to me. Everybody seems [illegible] desire for someth[illegible] which they were anxious to obtain, and this is strictly true in the case of Blaine.

"Is not Mr. Blaine's letter somewhat inconsistent with the action of his friends, presumably with his consultation, working for control of state delegations and committees?

"No, sir; it is not inconsistent. Any such work has been done by my own course I have received countless letters on this subject from people in both north, east and west. Mr. Blaine's friends have not sought to set up or secure a single delegate anywhere. We have made no concerted action. There has been no meeting to engineer a convention where Mr. Blaine, and I assert it now, that wherever he has been done on the [illegible] of Blaine has been done on their own account, and not at the instance of Blaine's friends. We have done nothing to secure the nomination for Mr. Blaine. When people wrote to me I [illegible] I send them in reply the call of the convention, as I signed by the [illegible] some extracts from the history of the convention of 1884. I have written no letters in Mr. Blaine's interest.

"Was this letter held back for any caucus meeting of his friends or of the national committee?" It was not. The letter was received by me on Tuesday last, it having come [illegible] Florence to me. It was entirely in Mr. Blaine's handwriting. As for [illegible] was intended for [illegible] I was not [illegible] body of its existence until Friday. Then I told one man, who accepted me [illegible] proof copies of the letter for the press. It was not given out on Saturday because many papers do not print Sunday editions, and I was anxious to give it the widest publicity. I arranged to have it go out by the special press. Even the man at once to Mr. Blaine as Mr. Sullivan B. Elkins knew nothing of the existence of this letter until this morning."

SENATOR INTERVIEWED.

New York, February 13—Senator Hawley, who is in the city, was asked if he considered Blaine's letter [illegible] He said, I do, most assuredly I do. I think he means every word he has written. There can be no doubt [illegible] the sincerity of Blaine in this matter. Circumstances may arise that will compel his friends to refuse to accept this [illegible] final answer from Blaine but that will [illegible] one knows anything about [illegible] Senator Platt said: I do believe Blaine to be out of the race for good and [illegible] I believe in having every word in the letter that appeared in the morning papers. I have had no reason to know for some little time that such a letter was forthcoming. It is a great disappointment to his friends.

Senator Hale of Maine, who is now on his way to Washington, said: I think Blaine is sincere and means every word that he has written. I cannot answer the question as to whether I had any premonition of his intentions in this matter, but I can say positively that Blaine was not anxious to run in 1884, and was urged to go so. He certainly will not be a candidate, and you can see from his letter that he does not decline because he thinks the republican party would be defeated. He will return in June or July, and when the campaign opens, Blaine will enter the field and speak for the ticket. As to the other candidates I cannot say. Yesterday Mr. Blaine's letter declining to be a candidate this year was made public. His letter will be read with sincere regret by his admirers. We may criticise Mr. Blaine for many things, but the fact remains that he has the largest and most enthusiastic following of any politician since Henry Clay. His nomination this summer was a foregone conclusion. This make his letter all the more sincere. It is no trick to try public sentiment or get the nomination. Many of his friends refuse to accept the decision. But presidential candidates by our dispatches this morning seem to be accepting the situation with Christian resignation and regard the letter as final.

OUR SPECIAL ARTICLES.

The special articles that we are now publishing are creating a good deal of interest. Few papers in this country have published a list of greater value in the last three months. Among these special contributors have been Castelar, Stepniak, Edward A. Freeman, Julian Hawthorne, Gail Hamilton, General Greeley, Dion Boucicault, and others. We have now made arrangements for the following letters, which will appear within a few weeks: Mr. Yan Phou Lee, who has written two articles for the North American Review, exciting very general interest, has prepared an article on the "Chinese in America by One of Them;" Senator John P. Ingalls, president of the senate and one of the most brilliant men in public life, will write on "College Men in Politics;" Mr. Edgar Fawcett, the popular novelist, writes an article on "The Inside of Practical Literary Work;" General O. O. Howard will contribute an article on the army; Admiral David D. Porter will discuss "The Subject of National Defense," with special reference to whether torpedoes furnish sufficient protection in time of war; Steele Mackaye, the dramatist, will write on "The Natural Rights of the Stage," and Mrs. General Lew Wallace on "Curious Turkish Customs."

In addition to these, we have prepared for a unique and valuable contribution to our national history by Benson J. Lossing, LL. D. The subject will be "Hours with Men and Women of the Revolution." Many years ago, a casual incident in his life in Connecticut inspired the distinguished historian to seek such memories of the great conflict for freedom and independence. He made a pilgrimage to the dwellings of living men and women who were actors in the stirring events now long past, and hear from their lips the story of their experiences and recollections of the time of the birth of our republic, and record them for the benefit of his countrymen. How well he accomplished his purpose and matured his studies, his celebrated "Field Book of the Revolution" will attest. He says: "In the vast storehouse of records, incidents and objects I gathered and preserved, there is much that could not be used in detail in this published work," and this material Mr. Lossing proposes to use in this series of special articles. His style is always picturesque, lucid and pleasing, and the articles will have a value far greater than usual coming from the historian who has made the most careful and thorough investigation of the facts connected with the history of the war of the revolution.

STATE NEWS.

An extensive addition to the Grand [illegible] Pueblo is soon to be erected.

Judge A. A. Bradford, of Pueblo, one of the oldest of Colorado pioneers, who has been dangerously ill, is now convalescent.

President Fletcher, of the Denver board of trade, has issued a circular to boards of trade throughout the state, asking co-operation in celebrating the advent of the Denver Texas and Gulf railroad, and desires immediate action.

Another important strike has been made at Aspen, the latest in the State, a report which has been a frequent producer for some time. During the past ten days the prospectors hereabouts have been unusually active, and as a result a fine body of ore carrying both silver and gold, averaging $100, has been struck on the lower level.

The ore for the new zinc smelter at Denver is arriving rapidly from the Leadville and Eagle districts. The Grant-Lowe product is of a good grade, and that of the Wilkerson-Sullivan is of a very high grade. The Leadville ore contains but 20% per cent of zinc, and considerable iron and silver. The ores is proving quite satisfactory, but it is thought the results will be more definitely when that which offers the cheapest charges.

The grand strike in the Bonanza district reported to be [illegible] and the [illegible] of both ends is the talk of the camp. It is reported that the Durant [illegible] have struck a rich body of ore in the west end of the Durant strike. It is stated that the strike is a work perfectly satisfactory to the owners, and that the [illegible] Saguache [illegible] look for the strike to be [illegible] in the [illegible] Aspen's long list of mines.

The winter session of the State Editorial association has been called to meet in Denver on February 21 and 22. Papers are to be prepared by members on the topics: Literary work in newspapers, [illegible] work in newspapers, How to [illegible] in two divisions, the city and the country press. Hon. Roger W. Woodbury has consented to deliver the oration and Miss H. L. Wasson is to be invited to deliver the poem. The session will probably be held in the chamber of commerce. An invitation is cordially tendered to all editors and publishers who are not members to join the association at the coming session. Particulars regarding membership can be obtained by addressing Secretary Patterson.

Too Costly.

Boyds Patriot.

No Patti for us babies. The family have decided that they can't afford it. When they realized that it would cost the youngster $2500 every time he wanted his mother to sing him to sleep—cost, up to no concert—they decided the baby could stand it without mortgaging the nursery and furnishings.

Simple Country Habits.

Argonaut.

In one of the St. Louis churches a resolution to erect by an appropriation of $100 over the grave of the wife of Deacon [illegible] was voted down by a comprehensive if coarse vote that did not have to do any thing to keep [illegible] in existence.

A BRAVE YOUNG WOMAN.

Miss Minnie Mae Freeman, Whose Coolness Saved Many Young Lives.

Miss Minnie Mae Freeman, of Mira Valley, Neb., is paying the penalties of fame. In the last blizzard she led her thirteen pupils to shelter and led them to a house three quarters of a mile away, undoubtedly saving many lives; for if they had separated, several would certainly have perished. Like all inspirations of genius, mine done it seems very simple, and she regards it; but the public insists on hearing her, and she has received scores of testimonial letters, a few offers of marriage and numerous applications to tell the story for the public prints. But all she asks is to be let alone, "any body could have done it," she says, "it was such a simple thing." And as she is already engaged to a young merchant in Omaha, the proposers are only wasting their postage stamps.

MISS FREEMAN.

She has, however, written an account of the affair to a friend in Omaha, who allows it to be published, as follows:

Can., Neb., Jan. 12, 188.

Your letter was received, and I am more than pleased to hear from you as I had begun to believe that you had forgotten me entirely. * * * You request that I relate to you the entire story of "that terrible night will be complied with, although I assure you I am beginning to tire of telling "the old, old story" so often, and have been obliged to "shut down" on almost everybody—more especially a paper man—for I really do not desire so much notoriety for as simple an action as that. Well, to begin. You probably can imagine how suddenly the storm came upon us and how it raged out here on the prairie. I knew as quick as it struck the school house we were going to enjoy a regular blizzard, and so I immediately sent and told the children to be sure and wrap up well. By the time the little dears had their cloaks and over-gaiters on the storm was raging furiously, and in a few minutes the doors and wind was blowing in. I took a look of alarm and I [illegible] in my heart and put the children together, [illegible] to my home and awaited developments, which soon came, for the storm [illegible] the roof off. Then I said, "Come on, children," and we started. It was about three-quarters of a mile to the nearest house and the wind blew in our faces for about [illegible] of the distance, and it was quite severe, but we got through all right. Now that is all there is to tell, and I—why do not think that I am [illegible] of so much credit. * * * And then everybody is willing to me, and several fellows have even gone so far as to propose.

After being notified that the people were going to present her a gold medal and other solid testimonials, she wrote urging that these be given instead to Miss Royce, the teacher who was lost in the storm with three little ones who protected them with her own wrappings and still could not save them, being herself badly frozen in the struggle. One admirer in San Francisco has already sent Miss Freeman a gold watch and chain, with an appropriate inscription. She is a handsome and accomplished lady of 19, an artist and a musician; and as the above letter shows, she can write very racy and readable English. So her many admirers need not fear but she will make her way in the world.

THE SIX DAY WALK.

Results About the First Madison Square Contest.

The "long walk" craze has suddenly seized on New York city again, and the attendance and interest at Madison Square garden for several days has been quite equal to that of the famous season of 1881. Sunday evening, Feb. 5, the place filled with spectators, and at midnight forty-seven walkers started off, making from seven to eight miles per hour. The noted Guerrero, a Mexican backed by Steve Brodie, made the first mile in six minutes and twenty seconds. Nearly all the seats and standing room for spectators were filled as on a gala night, and the excitement was equal to that over an international prize fight or yacht race.

And the contest was to some extent an international one for some noted Englishmen were entered. Most prominent among them, of course, was the English champion, George Cartwright, the successor to Rowell. He is short and stocky, with an enormous pair of legs, 29 years old, 5 feet 5 1/2 inches high and in ordinary condition weighs 140 pounds. George Connors ranks next to Cartwright among the Englishmen; he is a Londoner, only 5 feet 3 inches, with legs that seem unfortunately short, but they carry him over the ground rapidly. Archibald Bright had hitherto been known to fame only as an English athlete, and this was his first essay as a walkist.

U. S. FISH COMMISSIONER.

Col. Marshall McDonald, the New United States Commissioner of Fisheries, Comes of a Scotch Irish Family. More than a century ago numbers of emigrants from Scotland and the north of Ireland settled the state of Virginia and Col. McDonald's family was among the settlers.

He was born in Romney, in Hampshire county, Va. (now West Virginia), on Oct. 18, 1835. His father, Angus McDonald, was one of the commissioners who defined the boundary line between Maryland and Virginia. The son, after studying three years at the Military institute at Lexington, took a year's course at the University of Virginia, returning and being graduated at Lexington with the class of 1860.

The military institute at Lexington is especially memorable from having had on its roll of professors the Confederate general Thomas J. Jackson, more familiarly known as Stonewall Jackson. McDonald, after his graduation, held the position of assistant professor to Professor Jackson, and when the war came on in 1861, and Gen. Jackson was called to the command of what soon developed into the corps of the "stonewall brigade," McDonald was appointed to be inspector general on Jackson's staff. In this position and in others in the Confederate service he remained till the close of the war, retiring from the Confederate service a major of engineers.

MARSHALL MCDONALD.

In 1866 he was appointed professor of chemistry and mineralogy at the Virginia Military institute, with the rank of colonel, and afterward to the chair of mining and engineering at the same institution, which position he held till 1879, when he was elected to take a position in the United States commission, having for years [illegible] appointed [illegible] of Fish [illegible] Virginia. Since 1879 he has had charge of the duties of propagating fish in the waters of the United States, and for several years [illegible] practically controlled the operations of the [illegible] commission. Attention Fire

There will be a special meeting of the fire department on Wednesday evening at the city hall at 7:30 o'clock, for the purpose of making arrangements for receiving the Pueblo firemen and band. All members are requested to be present.

C. B. TIMES,
Chief Fire Department.

Rev. A. C. Peck went to Denver yesterday morning.

Hon. David Moffat came down from Montrose yesterday morning.

City Marshal Dana left for Denver last evening. He will return this morning.

To-day is St. Valentine's day, but it will not be observed to any extent in this city.

The Chinamen for the past few days have been observing their annual New Year's festivities.

There is an additional operator at the Western Union telegraph office for R. R. Gilpatrick.

County Commissioner J. C. Woodbury came up from his ranch near Little Buttes yesterday afternoon.

Passenger Agent Nye, of the Colorado Midland Railway, is in Kansas City on business connected with the road.

Mr. C. W. Collins, the well known of The Anchor, has secured a position in the drawing [illegible] and will [illegible].

Messrs. H. P. Bosworth and O. S. Lennox, two of Pueblo's representative [illegible], were in the city yesterday.

The Young Helpers will give a social this evening at the residence of Mr. [illegible] Robson. No. [illegible] West [illegible] which all are cordially invited.

At Bedell Kieffer, the only son of the Rev. and Mrs. A. R. Kieffer, died last evening after a very brief illness. Due announcement of the funeral will be given.

The dramatic entertainment of the Horse Foot club, which was announced to be given at Dr. Solly's residence this evening, has been postponed until further notice.

It has been decided to hold a meeting of the El Paso County Teachers association on March 24th and 25th. County Superintendent of Schools Berry is arranging the programme for the meetings.

The time of the county court was yesterday occupied in the trial of the case of O. E. Troth vs. A. Q. Artz. Messrs. Campbell and McMaster appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. E. A. Colborn for the defendant.

A petition to congress asking that the schedule of duties named upon by the representatives of the wool growers and wool manufacturers at Washington on January 13th be enacted into a law is being circulated for signatures.

An order is being made by the Colorado City board of trustees that the [illegible] office at that place a money order office. A committee consisting of Messrs. Ammerman, Venable and J. P. Jacks of were appointed to attend to the matter.

President R. R. Cable of the Chicago and Rock Island railroad and party left for Denver in his private car yesterday morning. On Sunday he took a drive about the city and expressed himself in the highest terms of its appearance and location.

Last evening about half past five o'clock City Marshal Dana served summonses on four of the city druggists for violating the liquor ordinance in selling liquor in quantities less than a quart. There are five cases each against three druggists and one against the other.

During Sunday night the residence of Mr. Lewis B. Johnson, on Last Kiowa street, was entered by burglars and some jewelry was taken. The thieves effected their escape without making their presence known, and leaving no clue behind them.

Yesterday Mr. S. N. Francis was engaged in removing the furniture and fixtures of his printing establishment from the second story of the Anderson block to a room on Pike's Peak avenue directly east of the Hagerman block. In his new quarters he will have a very neat and commodious office.

Captain DeCourcy yesterday [illegible] 4000 feet of 3 inch pipe, which will be attached to the 16 inch water main on Chestnut street, and laid through the alleys in Parrish's addition, which will soon, therefore, be able to boast of as good a water supply and as powerful pressure as any part of the city.

Chief Kellin has received a communication from the Pueblo fire department to the effect that the firemen and Knights of Pythias of Pueblo would run a joint excursion to this city on the 18th instant. Schreiber's band will accompany them. A meeting of the fire department will be held to-morrow night to provide for their entertainment.

The street railway company expect to resume work either to-day or to-morrow. Enough ties to complete the road to Colorado City have been ordered from the Newton Lumber company, and a car load is expected to arrive to-day. The last dollar of the stock has been taken, and a prominent official of the company yesterday stated that the road would be completed to Colorado City as soon as possible.

Harry Terrill, who was sent to the penitentiary from this county for grand larceny about two years ago served his term out one day last week, and on the same evening a drug store was burglarized at Canon City. Terrill was suspected and was arrested the next day for the offense. He violently resisted the officers, and while being taken to the jail attempted to escape.

Mr. T. T. Palsgrove, proprietor of the Half-way house on the Pike's Peak road is at present building an addition of twelve rooms to the house. When it is completed he will be able to accommodate about fifty guests. Last season Mr. Palsgrove was compelled to turn many people away on account of his limited accommodations, but he hopes with the improvements which he is now making to be able to provide for all the demands of the coming season.

Effie Ellsler appeared in "Woman Against Woman" at the opera house last evening. Notwithstanding the fact this was the second presentation of the play in the city the popular little actress was greeted by a large audience, who were greatly pleased with the performance. Miss Ellsler has such a powerful hold on the hearts of American theatre goers that she is always sure of a cordial and hearty reception, which she appears is of inferior merit. "Woman Against Woman" is a strong play only in its situations. The story of human sorrow which it portrays is unnatural, though it comes [illegible] the range of possibility. Its situations have apparently been conceived with the sole idea of effect and with the little regard to their harmony with the general account of human events. But the [illegible] and [illegible] of the play is lost sight of in the [illegible] characterization of Miss Ellsler. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
